

Exercise 2) Meet Illustrator Mona Chalabi, the Data Sleuth Making Poignant

Visualizations

About the Full Impact of Racism”

- 1) “Fully stretch out your arm...” Visual
- 2) I originally picked it because it caught my attention, I have never seen someone explain this way of staying 6 ft away from someone. I think it is very clever and outside the box thinking.
- 3) I believe this visual does well. It simply informs the audience on how to keep a distance without having to think too hard about the content.
- 4) It took me a few times of reading the title to fully understand what it was talking about. However I believe it was a personal issue of not fully paying attention. One main issue is that everyone has different length arms, I think as though it would not be too correct.
- 5) Having a cartoon drawing of the person and the hand helps understand what it means by having an arm distance and fitting the face into the circle. I believe having a visual representation of the scientific facts helps people understand better rather than reading an article about it.